

NZAC Member Behaviour

Introduction & Rationale

As NZAC Member's we are held to a high standard of behaviour within and without the association. However, due to varying circumstances, our behaviour towards each other can change and potentially cause harm. Therefore this policy has been created based on NZAC's Code of Ethics as a reminder to us all to treat each other with respect.

Core Values:

- Respect for human dignity
- Partnership
- Autonomy
- Responsible caring
- Personal integrity

Ethical Principles (Core Values in action):

- Treat colleagues and other professionals with respect
- Actively support the principals embodied in Te Tiriti
- Be honest and trustworthy in all professional relationships
- Act with care and respect for individual and cultural differences and the diversity of human experience
- Avoid doing harm in all professional work
