

Contributor Information

Carol Hamilton is a Senior Lecturer in Disability and Inclusion Studies in the Faculty of Education, University of Waikato. She is interested in how narrative methodologies can be used to uncover and explore issues of social vulnerability in education, work, and community settings.

Email: hamiltca@waikato.ac.nz

Maria Kecskemeti is a Senior Lecturer in Inclusive Practices and Narrative Mediation in the Faculty of Education, University of Waikato. Her research interests include the investigation of relationship practices and theories that respond to processes of normalisation and exclusion in educational and community contexts.

Email: hun@waikato.ac.nz

Barbara Mackay is a guidance counsellor at Westlake Girls High School. Her current research is in the application of photo elicitation to support school connectedness for students who move schools. She is also interested in the use of interactive drawing with students who move schools.

Email: bmackay@westlakegirls.school.nz

Natalie Thorburn is a doctoral student at the University of Auckland, and also practises as a sexual abuse counsellor and social worker.

Email: N.Thorburn@auckland.ac.nz

Paula Yeatman is a doctoral student at the University of Auckland, works in the face-to-face team (and especially with ACC clients) at Lifeline Aotearoa, and is in private practice in Auckland.

Email: paula@paulayeatman.co.nz