Bio

The Deaf community holds a special place in my heart, but my experience in teaching special needs students and working with the Ministry of Education on inclusion opened my eyes to other social groups who are not well understood and catered for in mainstream services. In response to this, my counselling practice evolved to become “Specialised Counselling” catering for the needs of Deaf and disabled clients. I am a bi-lingual (NZSL and spoken English) counsellor providing well-being workshops, supervision, training and counselling throughout Aotearoa New Zealand.
